

ComancheZOOM for Thursday, February 27th

Topic: Ditching part 2

On this ComancheZOOM, Alysia Larson continues with part 2 on ditching her Comanche in Narragansett Bay. She talks about the training she received as a CAP pilot in survival and water landings. While none of us wish to be placed in that situation, having the knowledge of what to do could very well save our lives too.

After a brief review of the events described in Part 1 (Jan 30 ComancheZOOM), she goes on to talk about their actions after the Comanche disappeared under water, the 911 call made at the last second, help they received from local rescue elements, and the training she got as a pilot for the local Civil Air Patrol (CAP) unit.

You can review Alysia's earlier Zoom at /Zoom/Jan30 Comanche Ditching.
